

Posting Your Response

Go to the Moodle Forum Page to enter your postings

The Issue

Lecture 1 introduced the idea that testing of software can be used to show the presence of bugs, never their absence.

If this is true, is there ever any hope that software engineering can be a truly professional practice?